Biography

Gail Bannister has her finger on the pulse of fitness enthusiasts and the club industry because of her widely varied fitness background. She is the Group Fitness Manager with UFC GYM. She presents both workshops and lectures at internationally attended conferences, and teach aerobic choreography as an instructor with East Coast Instructor Training School. Her classes are constantly fresh with new moves and music, often incorporating trends and ideas that are just moving into the fitness scene.

Gail quickly rose through the ranks within the fitness industry, becoming NASM certified while being employed as a group exercise instructor and eventually taking on administrative and management responsibilities. She first started with New York Sports Club in 1995 as a fitness instructor, and also taught at Citibank's corporate fitness center, Bally's Jack Lalanne and the Vertical Club in Manhattan. Her management experience started on Long Island at Club Central when she was named group fitness director.

Gail currently works as Flexibility, Core and Pilate's coach with the NY Jets Football Team, and Pro Hoops Basket Ball that focuses on skill sets that can help players improve in all areas of defense, and offense. She currently holds certifications in several different disciplines, which enhances her coaching abilities to her athletes, staff and her classes. She is the owner of The Bannister Method, located in Danny Holdstein Dance & Fitness 340 Wheatley Plaza, Greenvale NY 11548.

Gail was then named aerobic program coordinator of Bally's Jack LaLanne before becoming the general manager of Paerdegat Athletic Club/Brooklyn Health and Racquet Club. This is when she became an aerobic choreography instructor with East Coast Instructor Training School. Gail taught all aspects of group fitness methods and techniques to students wanting certification in group instruction.

In her current position as a Regional Group Fitness Manager with XSport Fitness Facilities, she monitors club programs, instructor schedules and group exercise trainings to ensure it meets current industry trends and safety guidelines.

Gail has gained momentum in her career as a presenter with ECA World Fitness, offering Step and Hi/Low dance classes at both their Miami and New York City conferences. She also is a team leader supervisor with ECA's New York City Conference and Trade Shows. There she staffs and oversees the group exercise, personal training and the lectures rooms for the convention rooms.
